

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of forming thin films of materials on an extreme ultraviolet multilayer surface is described. Specifically, an electron beam and a precursor gas are used to locally deposit a capping filling in a pinhole of a multilayer surface. The growth rate, purity, and spatial resolution of the capping filling may be modulated.